THE CITY.

The internal revenue collections yesterday amounted to $7,421.84.

The examination of applicants for po-sitions in the employ of the government will take place to-day in the postoffice building.

Owing to the non-arrival of Miss Alwine Heynold, who was to have played with the German company at Boyd's Sunday night, the performance was deferred until next Sunday night.

Thirteen car loads of tin plate ware have been received at the custom house Six came yesterday. Three of them were for Rector-Wilhelmy company, two for Armour, Cudahy & Co., and the other is subject to order.

Some of the men at the county hos pital have been laid off. The plans for the roof are not on hand, and they cannot proceed with the work. The architect was wired Saturday and an swered that the plans would start westward to-day.

The Copper Wire.

On Saturday last the Motor line on the Omaha and Council Bluffs bridge was under laid with a heavy copper wire to keep up the connection for the electric current, which could not otherwise be maintained, owing to e space between the rails for expansion purposes.

A Missing Mother.

A German with a name that sounds like Peter Ruhe, is looking for his wife. She left their home at Thirty-second and Burt streets last Friday evening and there are three small children mourning her loss. Peter thinks she is "not right in the head," but she knew enough to take his pocketbook with $25. He has an idea that she went to Nebraska City with a handsomer man.

Did Not Suicide.

John Kraft, the saloonkeeper from Grand Island who disappeared and was thought to have drowned himself in the river at this place Saturday night, has been restored to the arms of his family in safety. He was found a short way below South Omaha, wan-dering about the fields about 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and was brought to this city and from here he was taken to his home at Grand Island yesterday afternoon. When questioned concerning his exploit and where questioned concerning his exploit and where he had been he could not state. At the time he was discovered he was indifferent about returning to Omaha, or to his home. It is thought that his mind is deranged and his family has been warned to keep a close lookout for him.

The Would-be Wife Murderer.

Walter Edwards, the negro bootblack at the Murray, charged with attempting to murder his wife, was arraigned before the police court yesterday afternoon. He asked for a continuance, claiming that he would have to employ another attorney. The attorney whom he first employed, Alex Green, took from him his watch and chain and pin, since which time he has not seen Green. The case was continued until next Monday. Mr. Green says that he has attended to the case, and was in his office when Edwards was called to court, and that one of the court officers promised to call him but failed to do so.

He fully intends to earn his money, and merely took the Edwards' jewelry to secure his fee at Edwards' suggestion.

Down to Hard Pan.

Commission merchants say there has been very little trouble in enforcing the weekly payment rule to date, and that it works very satisfactorily. The wholesale grocers' association has decided to require payment of accounts, bought during the month, to be made on the 1st of the ensuing month instead of from the 10th to the 20th as heretofore. The jobbers say these rules may ap-pear hard to those who are unable to comply with them, but they believed that the better class of retailers, in fact by the majority of them, that in the end great benefit will result. A few of the smaller traders with insufficient capital will go out of business. All of the retailers here who have adopted the cash system, it is said, have made money more rapidly than those who have extended credit freely, and the tendency of the times is to reduce sales in cities of large size to a cash basis as nearly as pos-

A SUNDAY ABROAD.

Rev. Willard Scott in London and

Spurgeon's Tabernacle. Rev. Willard Scott delivered a lecture Sunday night in St. Mary's Avenue Congregational church on "Sundays in England," being a reference to his experience in London and Canterbury, the political and ecclesiastical heads of England. Speaking of the former place he said: We had also a Sunday in London, monstrous London, furlongs, miles, leagues, leagues upon leagues of city, city, city. Will it never end! Monstrous compactness, density of human lives, streets, courts, alleys, lanes, the only London. Talk of being lost on a moor sooner than be alone in London. What a place, and I sometimes see I never knew the meaning till lately,

"Alone in London!" Describing Spurgeon, his tabernacle and his methods, the speaker said: In we go with the others, and the aim is for the first gallery, as there are two. The house holds 5,000 people. There are 600 pews 270 on the THE EASTERN BOTTOMS.

JUSTICE COURTS.

A Rumor That the Law in this Respect Will Be Modified.

A rumor is affoat to the effect that at the next meeting of the legislature a system will be inaugurated pointing toward the revision of the law regulating justices of the peace

At the present time each ward in the city of Omaha is entitled to two justices, or making a total of eighteen in all in the city. An effort will be made to revise the law so as to reduce the number of justices to four, to be

Justice Reed, when questioned concerning the matter, said: "Yes, it has been talked over more or less in legal circles. There are various reasons for such a movement being made. One reason, and one that stands in outspoken importance, is that under the present system a certain class of people are preyed upon by members of the legal profession and induced to go to law when the circumstances of the case in no way warrant it.

In considering this point I do not wish it to be understood as reflecting upon reputable legal talent, but I do desire to be placed on record as saying that a large number of self-styled attorneys are using our justice courts as a medium to extort money from an uninformed public. This is abetted by men being placed in the position of judge who do not possess good common sense, not speaking of their ability to decipher technical points of law. If for nothing else, the present system should be modified. But again there being no civil jurisdiction existing in the powers of the po-lice court, the minor portion of the prelimi-nary proceedings is carried to justice courts.

The cases as a rule are of an important character, and require good judgment to be exercised. Now you can just examine the records for yourself in this respect, and ascertain how much money is needlessly spent by litigants, simply because justice courts have been made the tools of some unscrupulous lawyer. I am in favor of the move, and would also add that the jurisdiction in civil cases be extended to cases involving $500 instead of $200, and our bonds increased accordingle.

Truman N. Shepherd, charged with obtaining a buggy from the firm of Angene & case goes to show that Shepherd had pur-chased the vehicle, and given the above firm to understand that he was the manager of the Consolidated Tank Line in this city, and under that impression the carriage was de-was to strengthen the organization by the accession of new members. Many handed

They now present an unbroken surface occupied only Spurgeon stands in front of the first gallery. Behind him nearly 700 people. Before and on each side of him are 4,300 more. He is a solid business-like man, robust, with cutaway coat unbuttoned, turn-down collar, simby a few small cottages and huts, which are tenanted by workers on the bridge and a few people who eke out a precarious livelihood on the river and its banks. The first way cont unbuttoned, turn-down collar, simple black tie, iron gray hair, closely clipped, full shock hair, full sandy, heavy beard. There is no pulpit, but a stand at the left with a bible and lamp with a green shade; red carpet, red plush sofa, two chairs on one of which he often leans. In delivery he is slow, deliberate, clear, and motionless. He has notes and refers to them. He deals in close reasoning makes threat row and then step in the direction mentioned was taken when the Northwestern road, which has long had right of way down First avenue in Council had right of way down First avenue in Council Bluffs to the river, ordered the rebuilding of their track, which has long lain there with new steel rails of the latest pattern. This was followed by an order to construct a freight station a short distance from the bank, and upon which work will begin before long. On the 30th, the day of the opening of the bridge the road will run research trains lose reasoning, makes thrust, now and then The speaker then spoke of St. Paul's and Westminster Abbey, describing those won-derful monuments to the piety and devotion the bridge, the road will run passenger trains to and from the river to Council Bluffs. The "Q" has followed the example of the Northwestern, and secured right of way along First avenue. It has also bought a liberal tract of ground near the river, which it will utilize for terminal purposes.

These roads will undoubtedly be followed by the others, who are already negotiating for available sites for yard and depot pur-poses. It has been hinted that the Q would probably put on a dummy between the river and the Bluffs, to run between the hourly trips of the Umon Pacific dummy, and a speed which would enable better time to be made than can possibly be by the motor line. But definite plans have not yet been decided

The opening of the bridge-the wagon and motor way to Council Bluffs-will un-doubtedly have a serious effect upon the Union Pacific dummy traffic between both cities. People with teams will prefer to ride to being cooped up in the ferry cars, and those without carriages will prefer an immediate crossing on the new bridge or motor to waiting for the hourly trains on the Union Pa-Some speculation was indulged in as to whether the competition would induce the Union Pacific to reduce its fare and make more frequent trips between points, espe-cially as the motor rates will be lower than those of the Union Pacific dummy. Some of the officials of the latter were questioned on the subject. They claim to not be able to teil what might be done, although one of them hinted that if the competition became great, it might, in a measure, be obviated by tying up with the horse and cable lines on this side and giving passengers a continuous ride from the Bluffs to any part of Omaha, and vice versa.

The impelling motive of the railroads in extending their tracks to the river as above mentioned, is in anticipation of the establishment there of lumber and coal yards and manufactories, several of which have already been outlined. Three or four of our lumber dealers have bought land over there and intend to open yards there to supply the Iowa trade. Some of them now do a small business on the other side of the river, but this has not been done to advantage because of a double toll for transferring the material here and return over the bridge. With yards on the other side, both these tolls could be saved and the dealer could readily compete with the Council Biuffs dealer, who has almost monopolized the Iowa trade. One of these dealers said yesterday that the yards he intended to establish on the other side of the river would have nothing to do with Nebraska trade and that he would put them in as soon as it was possible for him to so do. It is now a settled fact that a number of the men employed in the smelling works, in Gray and Hoagland's lumber yards will re-side on the east bottoms. Some of them have bought lots over there and are already engaged in building homes. These lots are located on the first beach east of the river It will be nearer their work and the emple s mentioned, intend to erect a stairway to the bottoms on this side, at the west end of the bridge, to enable them to reach their place of labor without crossing to Ninth street. Cleveland & Harrison agree on one point, that the best out is Jarvis' old past two or three days. A Missouri Pacific coal car was knocked off the track on a Union Pacific side track, but was put in shape by the wrecker. "I guess Jay Gould is bleeding that road for all it is worth," said a railroad man, who watched the operation. "All the cars of that company seem to be worn out and rotten, at least all that come to Omaha are. I guess the Missouri Pacific will follow the Wabash."

There are enough cigars smoked in Omaha, which if made here, would give employment to 600 more cigarmakers. That is worth a great deal to a town. So many people would live here, build up homes, spend their money here and at the same time still further increase the population by encouraging people in various lines of necessaries to locate here for their appropriate that the same time still further increase the population by encouraging people in various lines of necessaries to locate here for their appropriate that the same time was all by one of the same time and the same time was all the same times that the same time are same to the same times that the same times that the same times the same times that the same times the same times that the same times the same times that the same times that the same times the same times the same times the same times that the same times times the same times the same times times the same ti The B. & M. roadmaster had a narrow escape yesterday. He was working a tri-cycle southward along the track, and when approaching the Thirteenth street curve was met by switch engine No. 144 which was backing up. He was warned in time by the Union Pacific employes and managed to save both himself and his machine.

Another member said that this plan would give Omaha 1,000 cigar makers instead of Two hundred coal cars for the Denver. Texas & Fort Worth road are being shipped to Denver via the Rock Island and Union Pa-

Nearly a Million For Paving. The records of the city engineer's office show that the estimates for paving allowed thus far in 1888 aggregate $655,000. The engineer estimates that over $200,000 more will be expended this year, and is of the opinion that with reasonably good weather all contracts, including Regan's, will be completed this season. In 1887 only $402,000 were expended for paving, so that this year's outlay will be more than double that.
